Unique Features Planned for Bazaar to Be Held on Thursday at the Bellevue-Stratford—Nancy Wynne Has a Few Things to Tell

HAVE you noticed how true it is that after tribulation there is greater likelihood of success? This is certainly the case in regard to the bazaar which Mrs. David Lewis is getting up for the benefit of the Wool and Comfort Fund of the men at the front and for the free beds of the Jefferson Hospital's Convalescent Home at Wayne. You see, the first plan was to have the affair in the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lewis, on Twenty-second street, but fire broke out in the Adams Express Company stables next door to the two Lewis houses and the ballroom and tapestry room in which the bazaar was to be held were quite badly damaged by water an smoke.

Well, not to be stopped by anything like that, Mrs. Lewis immediately made plans to transfer the whole thing to the Bellevue-Stratford, and it will be held in the Red Clover and Gold Rooms of that hotel this coming Thursday, November 8. Now the great likelihood of success to which referred at first is that in order to make up for the disappointment of not seeing the wonderful Lewis tapestry room and other rare things in the late Edmund Lewis's collections the committee has redoubled its efforts to make the bazaar and other side arrangements extraordinarily fine to attract and so don't miss it, my children, don't do it. It's going to be simply grand and glorious.

The committee includes Mrs. David Lewis, chairman; Miss Lila T. Fisher, Miss Marie Louise Dilkos, Miss Elizabeth Hood Latta and Mrs. Elizabeth Green.

MORE than fifty aides have offered their services, including many who were scheduled to make their debut this season. Under the direction of Christine Stockton these girls will appear in various costumes representing the articles they have for sale. Prominent among the younger aides will be Mildred Longstreth, Rachel Price, Eleanor Wirtz, Gladys Fox, Peggy Thayer, Mary La V. Sidney Franklin, Margaretta Jeanes, Maizie Lush, Louise Ashurst, Edith Carpenter, Martha McAllister, Mrs. George Earle, 3d, and Miss Willie Moss.

One of the most entertaining departments will be the doll booth, where Mrs. William Houston Greene, assisted by a number of aides, will dispose of many interesting and beautiful dolls, among them one dressed by a French soldier in the trenches.

Original and attractive Christmas boxes have been made especially for this occasion, and with many beautiful baskets will be sold by Mrs. Harold Nason.

For the card lovers will be bridge tables, this department being managed by Mrs. Clifford Lewis and Mrs. Rodman Water. A number of persons have engaged tables air-aid, among them being Mrs. John T. Lewis, Jr., Mrs. A. J. Dallas Dixon, Mrs. Pope Vestman, Miss Ida Cushman and Mrs. Robert W. Downing.

The useful table will be under the direction of Mrs. Robert Henderson, Helen Rose and Mrs. Henry Morris, Jr., while everything pertaining to the baby will be disposed of by Helen and Beatrice Wilson, Marion Button has charge of the knitted outfits for the soldiers and sailors.

MANY articles of value will be auctioned off during the day. Owen Fay, of the Philadelphia Country Club, has presented a high-bred Pomeranian, Mrs. Thomas P. Hunter has donated a Liberty Bond, while a box for the South Broad Street Theatre will also be disposed of.

Dr. George Earle Baiguel will speak in the morning, having donated his services. Another most important feature of the day will be the costume musical, where, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Hood Latta, many of the best amateur talent in the city will be heard.

Each artist will represent a different nationality. Mrs. William Baker representing France; Miss Dolly Thayer, Poland; Miss Jane McLaughlin, Italy; Miss Helen Buchanan, Russia; Miss Ruth Barber and Mrs. Elva Murry Shelby, Spain; Miss Helen Boothroyd, England, and Miss Latta, America.

LIEUTENANT FREDERICK DENT L. SHARP, U. S. A., and Mrs. Sharp, who have been living in Salt Lake City, will move this week to Little Rock, Ark., where Lieutenant Sharp is stationed. Mrs. Sharp will be remembered as Eleanor Longstreth, whose marriage was an event of September.

GAY TILGHMAN and her mother, Mrs. Richard Tilghman, have closed their house, Tulip Hill, in St. Davids court, and taken a house in Augusta, Ga., for a few months. You know Lieutenant Richard Tilghman, Jr., is stationed at Camp Hancock, and Mrs. Tilghman, Jr., who was Mary Bohlen, has been there for several weeks. Gay has completed her nursing course and is very anxious to go to France.

PRETTY WEDDING LAST EVENING

Miss Martha Halpern Married to Mr. Morris Katzen at Attractive Ceremony

There was an unusually attractive wedding last evening in the Students' Chapter Hall, Park and Susquehanna avenues, when Miss Martha Halpern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Halpern, of 2338 North Thirtieth street, was married to Mr. Morris Katzen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marvin Nathan, of the Beth Israel Temple, and was followed by a dinner. Tropical plants, roses and chrysanthemums were combined in the decorations.

For those who prefer blooms which will be useful even after the flowers they contain are gone, Bird sticks for staking plants will appeal to the gardener. These have been made by pupils of the public schools and supply an attractive form of Christmas gift.

"Bazaar Parsley" will grace many a dinner dish for pots of parsley are here, ready to flourish through the winter and serve the needs of the provident housewife. A potted vine plant will repay its owner for sunshine and water by climbing a window casement, and lending beauty to the room it adorns.

The flower booth ferns make a special appeal. There is always room for one more fern as decoration for the dining table, living room or hall. So make an early selection at the booth while the stock is complete.

For those who prefer blooms which, like the memory of the success of the bazaar, will last forever, there are artificial flowers. Among these the patriotic boutonniere is sure to meet with much approval.

To aid in the sale of all these articles the committee on plants and flowers solicits patronage. The expenditure of much time and energy has made possible this display, which is offered with the hope that by its disposal the cause for which all are working will be greatly enriched.

The committee acknowledges its very deepest gratitude to the florists, wholesale and retail, who graciously responded to appeals for donations; to the pupils and teachers of the school gardens, to the club, to subscribers and to all individuals who have given their time and active co-operation.

The Riverside Red Cross branch has the largest membership in Burlington County. The treasurer reports that $14,686 is on hand, which will be used for families whose sons and husbands have gone to war in cases they should at some future time be in need of funds.

Clarkson, of Edgewater Park; second vice chairman, Mrs. Edward R. Mulford; secretary, Mrs. Clara I. Galanter; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Russell; department of civilian relief, the Rev. Charles S. Lewis, all of Burlington.

NOVEMBER PLEASANT FOR VISITS

North Philadelphians Visit Out of Town—Members of 500 Club Entertained at Luncheon and Cards—Bazaar Held at Church

VISITORS find November a pleasant month to spend in our city, and Philadelphians find the cool, breezy weather a good time to visit friends and relatives in distant States. Mrs. C. Baldwin Foster, of Norfolk, Va., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, of North Park avenue, is spending the month of November here. Mrs. George Barry, of the Stonyhurst Apartments.

Mrs. Martha Fox, of 2104 Diamond street, left last Thursday to visit her Betty, Frank in Pittsburgh, Pa., and later will go to Columbus, O., to visit relatives.

Mrs. H. Rex Stackhouse, of 1815 North Twenty-second street, is expected at the late autumn with friends in New York.

Miss Mary Morton was among the recent visitors at Camp Meade.

Mrs. Harry Benschoter, of 2320 North Tenth street, entertained at luncheon and cards today, her guests being the members of her 500 club, who include Mrs. W. S. Price, Mrs. H. Cavitt Trumbull, Mrs. C. C. Freas, Mrs. William Moses, Mrs. S. B. Speake, Mrs. James Geyer, Mrs. Helster S. Hunter, Mrs. Walter Scott, Mrs. H. G. Quirus, Mrs. Harry Markley, Mrs. M. E. Wallace, Mrs. John W. McCloy and Mrs. Stuart Doyle.

Another group of congenial women who spent an occasional afternoon in playing cards was entertained on Friday by Mrs. Sylvanus A. Leith at her home, 1821 North Broad street. They included Mrs. James Spomer, Mrs. A. Ford, Mrs. Charles Patterson, Mrs. Louise Post, Miss Catherine Lette, Mrs. Charles E. Lukens, Mrs. Hiram D. Miller, Dr. A. LeFevre, Miss Margaret Jones, Mrs. H. H. Hoy, Mrs. Robert Radwiler, Mrs. Charles W. H. Hoy, Mrs. E. Wallace, Miss Augusta Brown, Mrs. Lewis Bally, Mrs. Franklin Apple, Mrs. Samuel Abbott, Miss Emma Schiedel, Mrs. Walter Scott and Mrs. Harry Horeau.

How attached one becomes to pets, and especially to a parrot. An invalid member of a family in this section has a pet parrot which sits on the back of her chair when she sews or knits, and at nighttime cannot be persuaded to leave its owner's room. There is a large tree in the garden, and the other day Polly flew out the window and lodged in the tree. No amount of coaxing could lure Polly back to the house, so the man of the family placed the tallest stepladder the house contained at the foot of the tree and tried to swing himself into the branches, with the result that the man and the stepladder did a few athletic stunts. The information reached the parrot at the same time, just as the man found that all his anatomy was in its usual place, the stepladder came in with his order, and volunteered the information that parrots will not come down when pursued, but always fly still higher. By this time all the windows facing the garden were occupied by interested spectators offering suggestions as to the best way to reclaim the truant. But Polly, nothing daunted, called out, "Get in, fireman!" It seems that one time when the fire alarm rang in the kitchen, the frightened members of the family had cried, "Get the fireman!" Polly had imitated them, and now, in the excitement, he mimicked, "Get the fireman!" "Good for you, Polly," said the man of the house, and he telephoned at once to the fire station a few blocks away, explained the situation and asked for a fireman and a tall ladder. So with the shortest time Polly was restored to its mistress.

The members of Grace Reformed Church held a successful bazaar on Saturday and Saturday evenings in the social hall of the church. The young women appointed to keep in touch with the twenty-five soldiers
